TECHNICAL SPECIFICATION, PERFORMANCE AND KEY DATA

VEHICLE LOADING

Incorrect vehicle and trailer loading can give poor vehicle handling and braking performance and a generally unstable and inefficient vehicle.

PAYLOAD AND WEIGHT DISTRIBUTION

A correct weight distribution is achieved by considering several simple points:

- Payload is calculated by GWW – EEC kerb weight and must not be exceeded
- This payload should be distributed as evenly as possible along the vehicle's loaded length
- The height of the payload should be kept to a minimum to keep the centre of gravity as low as possible
- Additional effects of a trailer should be taken into consideration (see towing section below)

Please refer to the Weights table opposite and the dimensions section to assess the most appropriate vehicle configuration for the loads you are likely to carry.

TOWING

Choosing the correct equipment.

Land Rover offers a range of towing equipment to suit different applications, both as optional original equipment and accessories.

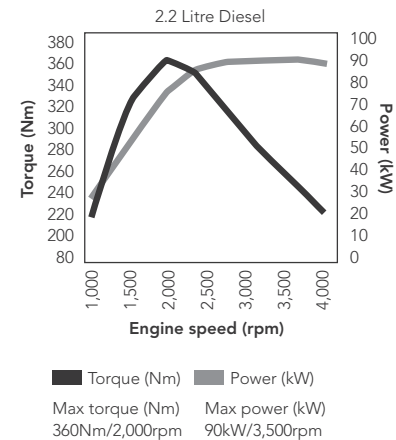

In order to obtain the best performance from your Land Rover, trailers should be loaded level and with the correct nose weight. Note the trailer nose weight must be taken into account when estimating axle loads and will have a disproportionate effect due to the position of the hitch behind the rear axle (see weights table).

ROOF RACKS

Any load on the roof of the vehicle will affect vehicle handling and significant or tall loads should be avoided. Land Rover recommends a maximum of 150kg including the roof rack. Land Rover Accessories and Land Rover Professional Vehicles offer a range of roof rack systems to ensure roof loads are carried as safely as possible. Please refer to the accessories section of this brochure or your Land Rover Dealer for more information.

The results given here do not express or imply any guarantee of the fuel consumption of any particular vehicle with which this information may be supplied. Vehicles are not individually tested, and there are inevitably differences between individual vehicles of the same model. In addition, the vehicle may incorporate particular modifications. Furthermore, the driver's style and road traffic conditions, as well as the extent to which the vehicle has been driven and the standard of maintenance will all affect its fuel consumption.
